NEWS FROM 21A – KEEPING THE WORK FLOWING

The work of the Diocesan Office continues at a fair pace, despite the dispersed group of staff. All of us do have a regular weekly meeting, which is very valuable in keeping our office community connected, just as you are all trying to do within your own church communities. The Diocesan Standing Committee met at the end of April, via Zoom, and was able to keep the pastoral and financial position within the diocese under review. The Diocesan Finance & Management Committee will be meeting on the 26th of this month, and the Diocesan Buildings Committee remains constituted, and is dealing with Canon 35 applications, quinquennial reports and some Provincial Buildings Grants.

Although the Events section is understandably empty at the moment, have a browse through the sections here, which highlight some wonderful things going on within our congregations. It is difficult to feel connected as a diocese at the moment, but the sharing of good practices and resources between us all has kept up many connections and networks.

As ever, Claire, Sam, Becky, David, James and I are all here to help you in any way we can, so don't hesitate to get in touch with us. Also, there are plenty of resources on the website - on the Youth & Children page and the Diocesan Office page and many others. Here are a few links:

COVID-19: UPDATED GUIDANCE + HELPFUL LINKS

New, up-to-date guidance regarding the Coronavirus (COVID 19) for the Scottish Episcopal Church can be found at <https://www.scotland.anglican.org/coronavirus-updates/>. Please familiarise yourself with this guidance to minimise risk to yourself and others. We encourage you to check this webpage frequently, to ensure you are up to date with the latest guidelines and developments of the situation.

Further into this edition, you will find a list of useful resources put together by David Lewis, which we hope will assist you in continuing your worship and communication as a church.

As mentioned in the last edition, we are looking to put together a directory of all online worship happening around the diocese. If your church is broadcasting services online, send a link to David at dlewis@dioceseofedinburgh.org

The Church of England has issued comprehensive advice (which it is keeping updated) on securing and caring for your church buildings during the Covid-19 pandemic. While some of it is obviously specific to the Church of England, it may also be of interest to SEC congregations. Here is the link: https://www.churchofengland.org/sites/default/files/2020-04/Caring for church buildings during the pandemic - advice for parishes v.3.pdf

The next edition of the newsletter from the Scottish Episcopal Institute is now available and may be viewed from the SEI webpage. Here is the link: <https://www.scotland.anglican.org/who-we-are/vocation-and-ministry/sei/sei-newsletter/>

DIARY

TUESDAY 26TH MAY (4PM) – DIOCESAN FINANCE AND MANAGEMENT COMMITTEE MEETS

Due to the current situation, we have had to postpone all Diocesan gatherings and events until further notice. We thank you for your patience, and will provide updates when possible on this matter.

NEWS FROM THE YOUTH & CHILDREN OFFICER

I have been reviewing and selecting some of the best ideas out there for this time of crisis: to help you connect with children and young people from your church, and nurture faith at home with the family. I encourage you to check the Youth & Children page of the Diocesan website regularly, featuring:

- A guide to protecting young people's mental health
- Advice about safeguarding online
- Creative ideas for praying and exploring the Bible with children at home
- Music resources from Fischy Music
- Things to do outdoors, for fun and faith
- Fun activities

I will also be updating a list of innovative things churches are doing to stay in touch with their children and young people at this time. Let's inspire each other! Please send your bright ideas to youthandchildren@dioceseofedinburgh.org

The latest Youth & Children Newsletter, featuring the latest news plus key information about how to support children and young people emotionally and spiritually in these uncertain times, can be found here.

PLEASE NOTE that I will be working from home for the foreseeable future, following new Diocesan Office guidelines. I can be contacted as usual via email or on my work mobile: 0747 372 8148

NEWS FROM THE COMMUNICATIONS COORDINATOR

Digital communication has become more important than ever in this time of pandemic. Much of what we do has had to move into the digital sphere, with many of our churches live streaming and recording their services in a variety of different ways.

Over the past few weeks I have been working closely with Aidan Strange (Provincial Digital Communications Coordinator), Sandra Brindley (Provincial Communications Administrator) and Petko Marinov (Glasgow & Galloway Digital Missioner) to help produce the provincial broadcast services. The output from this work has been largely positive, with weekly services (and more during Holy Week!) being broadcast on a Sunday on the Provincial Facebook and YouTube pages. The current plan is that these weekly services will be continuing for the foreseeable future, although please keep an eye on our Social Media pages for updates.

I have also been working with Bishop John to set him up with a Facebook page. His page is now active, and he will be posting updates and reflections. I will be helping John run the page, which will include monitoring the page and helping upload and administer content. His page can be found here:

<https://www.facebook.com/bishopedin/>.

In addition to this work, I am here to help with any digital questions you may have. I have set up a resources page, which includes digital tips and resources for praying at home (<https://edinburgh.anglican.org/coronavirus-resources/>), however if you would like to arrange a call to discuss specific needs/questions please drop me an email at jparsons@dioceseofedinburgh.org and we can arrange a time for a call.

The Rt Rev Andrew Swift, Bishop of Brechin, celebrates the Palm Sunday Eucharist from his home in Dundee with his family, Mary & Frances Swift. The service will begin at 11am on Sunday 5 April. Download the liturgy here: <https://bit.ly/palmsundayliturgy>

"The risen Christ has not only walked by our side but his suffering with us, in intensive care unit and grieving home, gives us cause today and every day, to cry, with all those other isolated souls scattered around our nation, 'Hallelujah! Christ is risen!'"

BISHOP'S LENT APPEAL

FROM THE BISHOP

I have had a number of enquiries about the Lent Appeal. The short answer is that it will continue until Easter and I would ask you to send any money gathered to the Diocesan Office as usual*. The harsh reality, of course, is that present circumstances mean many people will not be able to give as generously as usual and that gathering and sending the contributions will be challenging.

Charities are suffering at the moment and the two charities we are supporting this year desperately need money to continue their work. In both cases, although in different ways, this work is vital for the post-pandemic world. So I would ask you to do all you can to encourage members to give as generously as possible. I propose that we set a payment deadline for the end of August by which time, let us hope, many of the present restrictions will have been relaxed.

That will mark the end of this year's appeal. I do not believe it is helpful simply to postpone it until 2021. Next year will bring new challenges.

Please help the diocesan office and forward your donation directly to your church or treasurer and not to the Edinburgh Diocesan Synod account details below. This is because it hugely increases the accounting work at the office and, in addition, no Gift Aid can be claimed on donations from individuals

* Notice for treasurers only- It would help greatly, whilst the Diocesan Office is not staffed, if you could pay online rather than posting cheques to the office - though we realise this may not be feasible for some. If you can pay by BACS with your online banking, please use the reference "BLA2020". Here are our bank details:

STAYING CONNECTED

While currently we find ourselves exiled from our church buildings, various churches in our Diocese and further afield have been finding ways to take their worship and meetings online. In these unprecedented (there's that word again!) times we are all having to learn new ways of keeping our church communities united in prayer and fellowship. This learning curve can be steep, but by sharing our knowledge and experiences we can adapt our church for the better and, once this crisis is over, hopefully we can incorporate much of this into our post-covid church lives. Below I've provided a basic guide to the most commonly used ways of moving worship and other events online, and collated various resources that might be helpful in creating your own online offerings.

Broadly the ways of creating online worship content fall into four categories: pre-recorded videos, live-streamed videos, live video chats and combined musical recordings. Each has its own benefits and shortcomings, so I'd encourage any church wishing to increase the reach and impact of its continuing worship to experiment with different methods – bearing in mind that some worshippers could respond better to a more formulaic or passive worship style and others a more spontaneous, involved one! These techniques are by no means restricted to being used for worship – they can also be used for announcements, meetings, discussion groups and lectures, and informal social media updates.

When our hearts are wintry, grieving, or in pain,
Thy touch can call us back to life again,
Fields of our hearts, that dead and bare have been:
Love is come again like wheat that springeth green.

A hymn from a pre-recorded service (St Mary's Cathedral)

Pre-recorded videos: Possibly the most versatile option that can be very straightforward but also can be made more complex to yield very professional results. A pre-recorded video (taken on a phone or, for better quality, a camera) can be posted online to be viewed by worshippers at any time that suits them - typically on a video sharing website like YouTube or a social media website like Facebook. Links to these can be put on a church's website. Because it is not posted instantaneously it can be edited as much or as little as desired, including cuts between different videos and images, and video editing software (for example Hitfilm Express or ShortCut) will allow you to add captions to follow. A pre-recorded video is effectively 'disconnected' from the viewing worshippers, although it can be hosted at a specific time on Facebook as a 'watch party', to allow a bit more interaction between the church community. It is even possible to record live video chats (see below) and include them in such a video. Below I've put two examples of this – one in a worship context and one being used for notices to a church community.

An update from the Rector of Melrose

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=m8lYquIjDlw&t=301s>

Live-streamed videos: This option allows video to be recorded and broadcast instantaneously, from a phone or (for better quality) a camera linked to a computer. Live streams can be hosted on both YouTube and Facebook, and have the advantage of immediacy with those watching at home, who can post comments as the video goes along. Advanced users might even include some pre-recorded material, such as music, readings or prayers. Streams can also be left online after the fact to be viewed by anyone who missed the live broadcast.

A video chat incorporated into a live broadcast (Old St Paul's, Edinburgh)

Live video chats: In this option everyone participating in the service or event – by presiding, hosting or simply watching – can be seen by each other. As such it is the only option that allows direct interaction between participants and is perhaps best used for smaller, more informal services or discussion groups. Examples of software that allows this are Skype and Zoom, with Zoom achieving considerable popularity as it is geared specifically towards conferences and group meetings (and is very simple to use).

A combined recording of the worship band in a Ps & Gs service

Combined musical recordings: this is probably the most labour-intensive option available, but allows for the creation of very convincing semi-live musical performances. It works by getting multiple singers or instrumentalists to record themselves singing or playing along to a pre-recorded backing track (that they listen to on headphones!), then combining the audio of their recordings on a program like Audacity or Logic to make a convincing 'ensemble' performance. If they have recorded themselves on video these can be combined using advanced video editing software. Contrary to popular belief, this is NOT possible using Zoom or other video chat software, as the latency (delay between speech and relay) is too slow to keep the music in time. There's an example of this incorporated into the Ps & Gs video found above but another brilliant case of a combined recording being incorporated into worship can be found here, where the choir of Selwyn College, Cambridge have used these techniques to keep their chapel services running, despite the students now being scattered across the UK!

Example – a service of readings and music from Selwyn College, Cambridge University

Keeping a sense of community is important during these trying times, so here are some more examples of how you as a diocese have been continuing to communicate and work together.

CHURCH MAGAZINES AND NOTICES

- "Those that can be reached by email are welcoming our Newsletter that way and Dean and I have managed to drop in a paper copy to those that are not tech savvy." (Edinburgh, Good Shepherd)
- "I circulate our weekly pew sheet by email & encourage people to give copies to others." (Caroline Douglas-Home, Coldstream St Mary and All Souls)
- "The Vestry Secretary is converting the Christ Church website into one that can be useful to the three BECG churches. Helen Page has produced an excellent double-size Newsletter too." (Duns, Christ Church)
- "The website gives a weekly Pew Sheet containing the readings, and intercessions, together with a reflection on the week's text by our Rector Christine or our Curate Peter. This pew sheet is sent out by email. A paper copy is sent by snail mail to those not online. It is also available on Facebook and the website." (Bathgate, St Columba's)

GENERAL

- "A member of our congregation is a curator at the Modern Gallery and she has been conducting some online Gallery talks which many have found really interesting and something to take our minds off things for a brief while." (Edinburgh, Good Shepherd)
- "The CofS Minister uses Zoom for our ecumenical Lent Study Group on a Wednesday morning." (Eyemouth, St Ebba's)
- "Telephone ministry - a team has been set up and is calling every member of the congregation, checking up on their situation. If needed, calls are repeated weekly." (Colinton, St Cuthbert's)
- "The Shalom Group is sending out resources and reflections for their usual monthly meetings." (Colinton, St Cuthbert's)
- "Plans are in place for virtual coffee mornings." "The organist Paul Starkey is developing online music and YouTube resources." (Duns, Christ Church)
- "Stephen is meeting the challenge extremely well with the help of modern technology. Our last Vestry meeting was carried out with the help of Zoom as teleconferencing platform, and he also posted 2 videos for Maundy Thursday on our Facebook page, amongst other things." (The Church of the Holy Cross, Davidson's Mains)
- "We are experimenting with a Zoom Coffee and Chat group. It takes place every Monday at 3pm." (Bathgate, St Columba's)
- "Flowers knitted by various members of the congregation, some of whom were coming to our 'knit and natter' group." (Edinburgh, St Phillip's & St James')
