	Advent: The Season of Hope By Tish Harrison Warren One place to purchase.	Throughout its history, the church has observed Advent as a preparation not only for the first coming of Christ in his incarnation but also for his second coming at the last day. It's also about a third coming: the coming of Christ to meet us in our present moment, to make us holy by his Word and Sacrament. This short volume explores all three of these "comings" of Christ and invites us into a deeper experience of the first season of the Christian year.
	Mary's Voice: Advent Reflections to Contemplate the Coming of Christ By Amy Orr-Ewing One place to purchase.	At Christmastime we remember that an ordinary, young, poor, oppressed woman was chosen to play a significant and breakthrough role in the redemption of the world. It is no mistake that a woman gets to be a part of all this, and that her voice, her questions, her fears, and her actions matter. Mary's faith and her wisdom form an astonishing aspect of the story of how God became a person for the love of this world. And in our weary world that is waiting and longing for light, meaning, peace, and love, we can do as Mary did when she "treasured up all these things and pondered them in her heart."

Advent Manifesto: Daily readings and reflections from Isaiah and Luke
By Martyn Percy

One place to purchase

The message of the kingdom of God: an ecology of equality and peace, and an economy of justice. Hope from beyond, sent to the present, is what Advent asks us to reckon with. Hope consists of God's jump leads sent from the future through time and space, wired right into our present pains, panics, and predicaments. How can the light of Christ illuminate this present darkness? This book engages with the Magnificat and Benedictus. It is also rooted in poets, prophets and the theology and devotional writing of Howard Thurman. Using the lectio divina approach to passages drawn from Isaiah and Luke, this is an invitation to pray and practise that most ancient Advent prayer, 'Come, Lord Jesus, come.'
